FlowMusic Tutorial — Making Music with AI

Google Flow Music — make songs by chatting, Lyria model — Free preview

Flow Music is Google's tool for making music with AI (flowmusic.app). It was first called Riffusion, then Producer.ai — now, as part of Google, it is known as Flow Music. Songs are made by Google's Lyria 3.5 music model.

Flow Music is special because of chat — not one prompt box, but a conversation with a 'co-producer'. Think up lyrics, change the tune, extend the song, remix it, or split it into separate instrument parts (stems).

What is it?

The same account can also turn a song into a music video with Veo. The free plan gives daily credits, and you can download your songs.

In this guide you will learn: how to start Flow Music, how to make your first song, how to edit a song, and what to be careful about.

How to start — a glimpse

1. Open flowmusic.app.
2. Sign in with a Google account.
