Everyday English Conversation

Shop, market, office and phone — everyday English sentences — Free preview

Learning English does not mean reading big books. The sentences we say again and again in daily life — asking a price in a shop, bargaining in the market, asking for leave at the office, introducing yourself on the phone — once you learn those, the fear of speaking English drops a lot.

This guide has no difficult grammar. For each situation you will find short ready-made sentences. You do not need to memorize them — understand them and use them, and after using them once or twice they will become your own.

What is it?

The fear of making a mistake is the biggest barrier to speaking English. Remember, the shopkeeper or your colleague is not testing your grammar — they only want to understand you. Even if you make a small mistake, keep talking.

Give it just 10 minutes a day. Pick one situation, say its sentences aloud, then try to use one of them that same day. You will feel the difference within a week.

How to start — a glimpse

1. First pick one situation — for example, shopping in a store. Read the sentences for that part.
2. Say each sentence aloud three times. The pronunciation does not need to be perfect — opening your mouth and speaking is what matters.
